A recommendation was brought before the joint convention of the East Kootenay Rod and Gun Clubs, that Alberta fishermen be allowed to purchase B. C. fishing licences at the same rate currently paid by B. C. residents. This recommendation was made providing that the Alberta fishermen were in possession of an Alberta licence.

This resolution, if accepted will have to be sanctioned by the B. C. Fish and Game department.

Two Lane Highway Mooted For Elk Valley

An item of interest to Coleman fishermen appeared in the Michel-Natal Spectator last week regarding a proposed highway up the Elk Valley.

The article, reporting on the joint convention of the East Kootenay Rod and Gun Clubs, stated that a coal-hydro plant may be built in the Elk Valley district, necessitating the construction of a two-lane highway which the meeting feels would be injurious to the excellent fishing spots of the area.

The area mentioned has been a favorite haunt of the local fishermen for many years.

Cameron School Students Present Christmas Concert

The new auditorium of the Cameron school in West Coleman was christened last week and when the school students presented an interesting and varied program before a large audience of parents.

Miss M. Dunlop's grade one class welcomed the guests and sang "Away in a Manger" and "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer". Mrs. France's grade two pupils then followed with three arrangements of recitation and song "It's Christmas", "The Secret" and "Rudolph Helps Santa", a song "Ten Little Christmas Stockings", a recitation "Long Long Ago", an Xylophone solo and a Christmas Carol "Joy to the World".

A recitation "Merry Christmas" opened the choral section of the program given by the grade three students under the direction of Mrs. E. Shevels. The choir then sang "Over in Royal David's City" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem". Angels for the realm of Glory" was then sung by six girls assisted by the choir. Four young ladies then mounted the stage and presented their arrangement of "We Three Kings of Orient Are".

For the second section of the program the choir sang "Deck the Hall", "Jolly Old St. Nicholas" and "Jingle Bells" after which a recitation "Santa's Arrival" concluded this part of the program.

Mrs. Beck's grade four class then presented a play "The Christmas Special". All of the grade students took part in the play which was enacted as being at the Coleman CPR station's waiting room. The train was late due to a snow at Crow's Nest and to pass the time a play within a play was enacted and incidental numbers were presented. The Train, comprised of boys, finally arrived to take everyone to Calgary for the Christmas holidays.

A rose drill by the girls of Miss Beck's grade five class was then performed and nine girls dressed in white and carrying roses marched to accordion music provided by one of the students.

A play "Robin Hood" was then presented by the boys of the grade five who displayed great enjoyment in romping about Sherwood Forest.

Three young ladies then gave a recitation "The Storm" which depicted the Manger Scene.

Mrs. J. Montabetti's grade six students depicted the Happy Christmas Spirit enjoyed in the Pass when a number of boys played the following accordion selections "Sharp Shooters March", "Glow Worm", "Uncle Nick Polka", "Springtime" and "Whispering Hoop".

To conclude the very colorful and successful program the members of the grade six class entertained themselves as well as the audience by dancing the "Virginella Reel".

WHAT WILL YOU GET?

Do you the citizens of the Coleman School District fully understand what it may mean to you if the district is included in a division?

Do you, the citizens, think that such a plan should be put into effect without you having the full facts presented at a public meeting?

Will we lose control of our present high standard of education as shown in the quality and percentage of students graduating?

Will we be assessed all over again to improve the standard of schools in other sections of the proposed division without some adjustment being made for what you already have?

Will Coleman and surrounding area receive representation on the board in comparison to the population?

According to information received at this office the provincial government representatives will meet with the School Boards next week. The Journal will make every effort to keep Coleman residents advised regarding this move

Boy Scout Bean Feast Well Attended

Some twenty-four Scouts and fathers joined in a beanfeast in the Anglican Hall on Tuesday last. A delicious meal was served by Mesdames Sisti, Penny and DeCecco and afterward the Scouts entertained their guests with some excellent musical numbers. Mr. Williams gave a display of his skill in conjury. Scoutmaster F. DeCecco explained briefly the aims of scouting and the work done in Coleman with the troop.

The Scout District Commissioners enlarged on this subject and gave all present an idea of the real value of scouting. Padre Moss gave some reminiscences of his scouting experiences some forty years ago and told how he attended a world wide rally of 30,000 boys from all over the world held in Windsor, Ontario.

He said there was no other movement in the world for youth that could excel the Boy Scouts. The training received and the ideals inculcated by boys remained with them throughout life and helped develop them into real men and good citizens.

Mr. Jack Colwell, as President of the Lions, told how the organization was sponsored by the Lions and he considered it very well worth while. Mr. Robert Pattinson, who has right along taken a keen personal interest in the troop gave some idea of how time and labor spent by himself and the leaders justified every effort. Mr. Lor Richards was warmly welcomed by all present as one who was instrumental in starting up scouting in the community, also as Scout leader, has worked hard for the lads.

Anyone knowing Percio DeCecco realizes what scouting means to him and what the boys think of him as the Scoutmaster. These Leaders have earned the respect and affection of all the boys as was plainly visible on the night. Their smart appearance and ability in Scout work demonstrated the training received. The fathers present undoubtedly returned home enthusiastic about scouting and proud of their sons.

Mr. Horace Allan told how that scouting supplied for boys lots that ordinary education did not give in the schools. It developed character and initiative in the individual.

People shop where they are invited—that's why it pays to advertise.

California Visitor Boosts Alberta

Alberta tourist publicity is receiving a good shot in the arm as the result of Ray Bagley's visit to California and the west coast.

As everyone knows, Ray is a veteran of the Rocky Mountain Trail Rides and knows the scenic spots of Alberta as well if not better than the next man. Printed below is a personal letter to your editor, that we reprint, because of the high praise that Ray has for his home province.

Dear Jerry;

Two weeks since I left Coleman and I have travelled at least 1500 miles, and in all that time I haven't seen anything to compare in scenic splendor to my own backyard at Coleman.

God was in a cheerful mood when he made Alberta. He took some of the best that He had, good soil, good level fields, useful timber, fuel and power sites, mountains, lakes and streams, and when He came to the people He searched the world and gathered the good of all nations, welded them together as a race one can ride the river with.

Individually there are places that have this advantage or that one, but when you want a country that has it all, go to Alberta.

I believe I have seen more of this city in the few days I have been here than many who have spent a lifetime here. Finding old friends, making new. This big blue ocean that many rave about must be somewhere else, as all I have seen so far is roily, muddy water.

The colorful decorations of the holiday season are wonderful. They are man made, and what man has done, man may do, and our town could do as well, given the incentive. I have toured the streets every night in open admiration. I am not shutting my eyes to the good things I see, neither am I forgetting my own home town. Next week I go to Vancouver and keen for new places and scenes.

The hospitality of the people on this island leaves nothing to be wished for. I have been wined and dined. My cup runneth over.

An Alberta Booster.
Ray.

And there was the worker who approached the boss and wanted a raise because he'd just been married. And the boss refused because he said the company could not be held responsible for accidents that happened outside the factory. And the chap spoke up and says, "Well, it wasn't all accident, I didn't know it was going to happen but I found out later that she'd known all about it for the last six months."

Just read that a son's ear doesn't make a very good silk purse but that a good calf can do a lot for a silk stocking.

Sweet to remember her who once was here.

And who, though absent is just as dear.

Ever remembered by her husband W. Fraser Sr. and family.

Swift Current District Resident Wins Honor Of Being Canada's "Honey Queen" At Winter Fair

Two days after their return from Toronto, where she won the trophy emblematic of the Best Honey at the Royal Winter Fair show, the cameraman caught Mrs. J. W. Kent, Mr. Kent and daughter, Susan, in front of their farm home, near Pamburn, Sask.

Mrs. Kent won the Canadian Beekeepers Council Trophy for "The Best Honey in the Show," and that taken in all of Canada. The Kents entered last year and won two fourth prizes. This time they didn't know of the victory until they arrived in Toronto. But while out here heard it before they did, on a morning news broadcast folks were en route by train.

Previously at the provincial honey show at the Regina Exhibition Mrs. Kent has won top award for liquid white honey for two years in succession.

They have five colonies of bees and this year harvested 1,200 lbs. of luscious honey, all of which was sold locally; as a matter of fact demand for their product exceeds the supply as it always does.

A few years ago Mr. Kent discovered he was allergic to bee stings, and since then the active work has been handled by Mrs. Kent herself. They have been in "bees" for 10 years now on their farm which is about three miles northeast of Pamburn and within sight of Vanguard. Mr. Kent is a native of Myrtle, Ont., and Mrs. Kent is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Jorgensen and was born in the district.

The trophy is a Silver Bowl suitably engraved, and has yet to arrive at the farm from Toronto. That a district farm lady should win the top honor honors the Toronto Royal Winter Fair is a great achievement. Naturally they are a happy couple over the win.

Funny and Otherwise

A woman was bemoaning the fact that her husband had left her for the sixth time. "Never mind," sympathized her neighbor, "he'll come back again."

"Not this time," she sobbed. "He's taken his dashboard."

"Once and for all I want to know who is boss in this house," the irate husband demanded. "You'll be much happier if you don't try to find out," replied his wife, sweetly.

Annoyed at the non-delivery of some coal he had ordered, a man wired to his dealer: "Cancel order immediately."

He received the reply: "Regret cannot cancel immediately. You must take your turn."

An obviously refreshed guest was brought into the hall of a temperance hotel by an obliging friend. The manager, noticing his condition, came forward in alarm. "Hey, you can't bring that man in here," he cried. "This is a temperance hotel."

"That's all right," said the friend. "He's too tight to notice."

"It's all nonsense about the Irish being great fighters."

"How do you make that out?"

"Well, you know Mike Rafferty who lives in our street? Last night my brother and I and a couple of other fellows knocked him silly."

"How's the boss when you told him off?"

"He's a different man."

"And you?"

"I'm with a different firm."

A patient was pleading with a doctor that he really didn't need an operation. There's nothing wrong with me," he argued, "except that my appendix itches."

"Good," replied the doctor, "we'll take it out."

"Just because it itches?" the patient gasped.

"Certainly," the doctor boomed back. "Have to take it out before we can scratch it."

Waiter: "Do you want the dollar steak of the dollar and a quarter steak, sir?"

Sir: "What's the difference?"

Waiter: "You get a sharp knife with the dollar and a quarter steak."

Whale steak was on the menu and there was no particular run on it, so the waiter was surprised when a diner asked for a double portion.

"You're fond of whale steak, sir?" he asked.

"Well," the diner explained, "I've been waiting for this opportunity for a long time. My name's Jonah."

"After the quarrel she let him have the last word."

"That was unusual for her, wasn't it?"

"Yes, but I understand she wanted to give him a little surprise, as it was his birthday."

The teacher wanted to impress on his class that there was nothing a man could not do if he put his mind to it. Johnny Jones begged to differ.

"Well," said the teacher, "tell me what is it."

"You try to strike a match on a piece of soap," was the answer.

Studies Light Sandy Soil

Management of light sandy soils has been a major problem for many years. These soils are relatively low in fertility and have a low water holding capacity.

They lack fibre content and during dry years they are very subject to wind erosion. On the other hand they are just as subject to water erosion during wet years. This means that sound farming practices must be followed in order to farm such land profitably.

The Metiskow Substation is representative of a large portion of the light sandy soils of Central Alberta. These soils have proved suitable for mixed farming. Areas that are too hilly for farming are used profitably as native pasture.

It has been found that erosion on the cultivated land can be reduced greatly through use of forage crops, trash cover farming, and proper cultural management. The fibre content of the soil can be maintained by periodically seeding a grass-legume mixture and leaving it for a period of three or four years.

Experience has shown that there is little danger of wind erosion if the soil is broken early in the spring and seeded to a grass crop as soon as possible.

Not more than two successive grain crops should be grown on these soils, otherwise the fertility of the soil may become depleted. Seeding forage crops with a nurse crop has not proven satisfactory because of limited moisture. It is more practical to delay seeding the forage crops until late Fall or early Spring, when they may be seeded directly into the stubble.

This type of rotation not only provides feed for livestock but controls soil erosion and aids in maintaining the fibre content and fertility of the soil.

The average hay yields on this rotation over a three-year period have been 1,01, 1,08 and 0.86 tons per acre for the 1st, 2nd and 3rd year of hay stands respectively. Most of the grain crops during this period have been cut for feed.

If cash crops are desired, Says L. J. Anderson, Lacombe Experimental Station, two-year or three-year grain rotations may be used satisfactorily. When such rotations are used, careful attention must be paid to maintain a trash cover on all fallow fields.

This may be accomplished through use of implements such as the Noble blade cultivator. In the grain-fallow rotations during a fourteen year period at the Metiskow Substation, the average yield of wheat after fallow has been 13.8 bushels per acre and for oats after fallow 28.0 bushels per acre. In comparison the average yield in a three-year rotation of fallow-wheat-oats has been 10.6 bushels for wheat and 13.9 bushels per acre for oats.

On a net returns basis the two year rotations are favored slightly over the three-year rotation. The additional yield through the use of Ammonium Phosphate 11-48 fertilizer at 25 pounds per acre on wheat has been from 3 to 5 bushels per acre.

Although varying climatic conditions play an important role in any farm economy, there is no reason to believe that the rotations and farming practices outlined above should not prove practical at other locations having a similar soil type as at Metiskow.

That, as I see it, is the great and immediate challenge of the present day. And that challenge will not be met if the bogey of over-production should drive individual nations behind the barricades of high tariffs and intensified restrictions."

Mr. Ball saw the need of the immediate future as the speedy permeance of trade policies based fundamentally on recognition of three facts: first, that the welfare of the free nations is interdependent; second, that the objective of "trade not aid" can be achieved only with the full realization that trade is a two-way process; and, third, that it is idle to talk of enduring peace without deliberate measures designed to help less fortunate countries to help themselves by giving them a fair chance to sell in external markets.

Rare Bird Shipped From Taber To Zoo

Taber residents may not know that they have some rare species of birds in their district, and one in particular has come to light through Mr. Everett Kerkhoff who has presented to Mr. Roy Brewer a beautiful white ring neck pheasant which was shipped to the Calgary Zoo.

These white mutations are exceptionally rare here, so when Mr. Everett Kerkhoff arranged with the Calgary Zoo to ship the details of the shipment.

B of M HEAD STRESSES NEW NEED FOR SALESMANSHIP, EFFICIENCY, REALISM

Gordon Ball Sees Keener Competition and Return of Normal Hazards of Enterprise

ARTHUR JENSEN, GENERAL MANAGER, PRESENTS RECORD STATEMENT, REVIEWS BUSINESS OUTLOOK, PRAISES PERSONNEL

Keener competition and the return of normal hazards of enterprise were given as reasons for a renewed emphasis on salesmanship, efficiency and sober realism in business by Gordon R. Ball, president of the Bank of Montreal at its 136th annual meeting of shareholders.

In reviewing the Canadian business picture during the past year, the B of M president said that "we seem to have passed from a situation in which nearly all business influences were buoyant to one in which the normal hazards of enterprise are once more apparent."

"The business landscape," he said, "has begun to show a more varied pattern of light and shade. Some industries, particularly those dependent on export markets, have been encountering difficulties. Competition has been keener, both in domestic and foreign trade."

Mr. Ball maintained that, while these developments did not justify a gloomy view of Canada's prospects, they did suggest the need for a heavier awareness of the boom conditions of easy selling and easy profits are subsiding. "I am still an optimist," he said, "regarding Canada's future, but serious optimism includes a candid recognition that the immediate prospect places a renewed emphasis on salesmanship, efficiency and sober realism."

More Intensive and Economic Use of Resources

The speaker saw in the improvement that had taken place during the past year in the sphere of international trade and finance "a great opportunity for further bold advances towards more intensive and economic use of resources."

He felt it would be tragic if, just at the time when the military and political defences of nations of goodwill were being strengthened, the economic gains of the recent past were to be lost.

"It is up to all of us, in all countries, who stand with private enterprise to demonstrate here and now that the system that we rightly believe produces most and contributes most fully to well-being does not inevitably bring periods of slump and mass unemployment."

"That, as I see it, is the great and immediate challenge of the present day. And that challenge will not be met if the bogey of over-production should drive individual nations behind the barricades of high tariffs and intensified restrictions."

Mr. Ball saw the need of the immediate future as the speedy permeance of trade policies based fundamentally on recognition of three facts: first, that the welfare of the free nations is interdependent; second, that the objective of "trade not aid" can be achieved only with the full realization that trade is a two-way process; and, third, that it is idle to talk of enduring peace without deliberate measures designed to help less fortunate countries to help themselves by giving them a fair chance to sell in external markets.

Mr. Jensen praised the bank's staff for their performance in meeting the high volume of business. He explained that the bank was continuing to develop its mechanization program to the maximum practical degree to assist the staff in handling the immense volume of work, and that it was likewise keeping under constant review all matters relating to the welfare of the staff.

THERE IS A WAY

There is a way for those who diligently seek a goal; a way to attain cherished hearts desires; a way, unrevealed at the first attempting, obscured by trivial happenings until a timely hour. There is a way; let no man tell you different. With a set goal, each day will bring its bounty; each completed task bring you nearer the prize. There is a way, not always brightly lighted, nor yet clearly defined for human eye to see. Then comes a day when the way stoutly travelled brings the reward out of diligence and striving.

DRUMHELLER MINES YIELD 133,077 TONS IN OCTOBER

DRUMHELLER, Alta. — During October mines in the Drumheller area produced 133,077 tons of coal, according to figures released last week by J. A. Button, director of mines, at the weekend.

Early in the season several mine operators in the area reported that there was a shortage of experienced workers.

On The Side

By E. V. Durling

What is the world's greatest entertainment attraction at this time? Why, sir, it is a stuffed whale. On exhibition in Paris, a stuffed whale named Jonah had for an extended period, a box office take of $35,000 daily! An average of 120,000 people a day paid to see this whale. At times, there were waiting lines a half mile in length. What attraction there is in looking at a stuffed whale escapes me. Nevertheless, it has always been a great box office attraction. However, I think Jonah, the stuffed whale currently being exhibited, has broken all records. It is 60 feet in length and weighs 38 tons.

Just Plain Unfortunate

The records reveal that certain individuals are involved in an unusual number of accidents. Hard luck seems forever on their trail. There is a record of one man who was struck by lightning three times, buried alive in a coal mine, fell from a 30-foot cliff, was thrown by a horse and dragged through a barbed wire fence, fractured his skull in a bozeign accident and was run over by an automobile. This all occurred within a period of 20 years. I have been involved in only three serious accidents.

Let Men Be Wallflowers

Balls at which the ladies do the asking for dances should not be held only during leap year. Such events should be held regularly. At these dances no man should be permitted to ask for a dance. If no girl present approaches him and asks, "May I have this dance with you?" a fellow should be required to sit it out. This would give men an idea of the suspense some girls experience at dances. It would also enable them to understand the sufferings of a wallflower.

British Marriage Bureau

"Even when his hair is gray, a man can always get a wife, but a woman's time is short." That's what Plutarch observed several thousand years ago. It still holds good to some extent. However, with the modern artificial aids to beauty and rejuvenation, a woman's time to acquire a spouse is not as short as formerly. Speaking of matrimonial opportunities brings to mind the Marriage Society of London. This is a non-profit organization associated with the Church of England. Its object is to bring about happy marriages. Men and women wishing to be wed apply at the society's office and fill out a form, answering many questions about their personal lives. They also indicate what sort of a spouse they would like. The Marriage Society then goes about trying to arrange a happy marriage for the applicant. The scheme has been unusually successful.

Father Knows a Thing or Two

Every young woman should have at least six young men sufficiently interested in her to telephone her periodically asking for dates. No young woman should go "steady" with a young man until he puts an engagement ring on her finger. Incidentally, mothers are supposed to furnish the best advice on handling the male sex. I believe an experienced father can give his daughter better advice about that subject than a mother. Providing, of course, he is a broad-minded fellow.

TOURIST INCENTIVE

Banff and Sunshine Village are luring winter vacationers with their "Learn to Ski" weeks which commence the first of the year, and continue through the winter and at Sunshine, right through to May 8. Economical package deals are offered (as low as $59.00) which include accommodation, ski lessons, all meals, use of ski tow and chair lift, and in Banff, transportation by snowmobile to the top of the runs. From Sunday to Friday or Saturday, a vacationer can learn to ski, under the instruction of Johnny Monod at Sunshine or Pete Van Wagner at Mt. Norquay, Banff.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

LATER PROPHETS

ENLARGED SCOPE OF GOD

Two conceptions, or attitudes, in conflict now were also in conflict in ancient Israel, where the Hebrew prophets spoke and wrote. One is of a religious isolationism and of a limited conception of God, providence and duty. In this conception God is little more than a tribal or national deity, whose special favoritism is for one race or nation, called and chosen to the exclusion or neglect of all others.

This is not unrelated to the political isolationism which has broken down somewhat before the stern facts that in matters of war and peace, welfare and danger, the world, even though its divisions are sharp and its conflicts intense, is one in a way in which it has never been before.

Over against this religious isolationism is the conception of monotheism. Especially among the later prophets of Israel were the nobler souls who saw the law of God and His righteousness as being for every place and time, embracing all men and demanding the obedience and devotion of all. In this conception the call of God was not a matter of arbitrary preference. It was a call to duty and responsibility, as a spiritual nation, through which all the nations of the earth should be blessed.

This large and noble conception of God found expression in many prophetic passages and in the rich and illuminating later chapters of Isaiah.

The great invitation of Isaiah: "Behold, I have called thee by name, thou art mine," is a call to men everywhere, still stands today as a living word of God, undated, for every time and place. It reflects in its glorifying of God the glory of the prophet who wrote it.

And these noble prophets of Israel challenge our modern world with their world-wide outlook and their message concerning the God of all, with the only adequate way of peace and welfare for humanity.

Selecting The System

Though hockey is not the type of game that makes it possible to use a large variety of play systems (e.g. football) there are quite a few definite systems that can be used. To select the basic system the coach must remember that it must be adapted to the player material available. This is very important because so many coaches are inclined to force the players at their disposal to adapt themselves to a certain system of play, regardless of their players' suitability for it.

The problems of the over all strategy to be used is not as complex as it is, for example, in football. Quite often the football coach must figure out the best system to use on each of ten or twelve succeeding Saturdays against teams that use different systems. In hockey, a team will probably play three or four games against the same opposition. However, the same principle of adapting the system of strategy should be followed. The style of game played by the opposition is always one of the important contributing factors when a coach is trying to decide what general system of strategy to use.

Some of the types of strategy which a coach can use are: "Pressure Play," "The Tight Game," "Pattern Play," and "Counter Play." "Pressure Play" consists of a very aggressive offensive game which will overwhelm the opposition by disorganizing them and trying them out through constant application of offensive pressure.

"The Tight Game" is a conservative system in which aggressive defence is not emphasized except when there is a definite advantage. The fundamental principle of "Pattern Play" is that by passing the puck the greatest number of scoring opportunities will be developed. "Counter Play" is based on the same principle as the counter punch in boxing. Let the opponent break on breaking it up. These offensive manoeuvres are death with in great detail in The Hockey Handbook which will aid the coach in setting up his basic offensive strategy.

One-Legged Basketball

A conditioning drill that is also excellent for developing leg strength and agility is one-legged basketball. The idea is to have a normal game or scrimmage session only it must be played on one leg with the players hopping everywhere.

The coach should designate which leg is to be used to start and then at the command "change" the players must shift to the other leg. It doesn't take much of this to get the players tired. Learning to adapt their passing, dribbling and positional skills to playing on one leg is excellent motor ability training.

Water — When And How Much

The ideal system is to take water when thirsty but not in large amounts. The athlete should not drink quickly nor drink water that is very cold. Water with a touch of lemon or orange juice in it is best. Only an amount of water sufficient to actually satisfy the thirst should be taken. The athlete should not give in to his thirst and flood himself.

Journal Editorial Page

We heartily believe in the New Year tradition . . . the ousting of the old to make way for the new.

The year that is behind us is dead; we can do no more with it.

But the year ahead is a virgin page; we can inscribe it as we will.

May 1954 light the way to new pinnacles of achievement for you, as well as to the new goals of health and contentment. Accept our heartiest New Years wishes.

It is a new year with new jobs and new friends falling in behind the old. Let us resolve so far as we ourselves are able, to make it a year of accomplishment . . . a year of benefit not only to ourselves, but to our friends, our town and our country. In short, let us all work together for a greater peace.

A Tribute To The Men in White

At this season it is fitting to pause for a moment and think of the men in white . . . your physician and surgeon . . . and what their service means to you. There is an arduous, nerve racking profession, perhaps the most exacting profession of all. Not a single moment of the day or night may they call their own.

Right now, with the holiday season just behind us, we must realize that these men would enjoy spending the holidays in simple pleasure around their own fireside, yet they must stand ready to sacrifice their joys and go at a moment's notice to alleviate sickness and administer to pain whenever called.

And theirs is a thankless profession. We are ever quick to damn the rascals in their circle, forgetting that for every rascal there are thousands of good, conscientious doctors and not a few brilliant geni whose discoveries are invaluable to mankind.

So, at this early stage of the new year, let us honor the doctors; let us apologize for our short tempers in periods of pain and worry; let us hold him in high esteem for his unselfish service.

Letters . . . TO THE EDITOR

Coleman, Alta.,

Dec. 30, 1953

Dear Mr. Editor:

During the Christmas holidays maybe it's customary for cafes to stay open for only a certain time to oblige its local boarders, but is there any of these people that put this in mind — there are other people travelling by car, bus or train that might like a Christmas too, or a friendly smile. Some people came into Coleman on Christmas Eve and had to phone a private home and ask for something to eat, because we, the people of Coleman, thought of no one else but ourselves.

Let's do better on New Year's Eve and New Year's Day.

Yours truly,

A Citizen of Coleman.

Lo, The Poor Editor

Consider the poor editor! A child is born unto the wife of a merchant in town. The editor writeth a column and a half and telleth the multitude that the child tippleth the beam at nine pounds. Yea, he lieth even as a centurion. And the proud father giveth him a cheap cigar.

Behold the young one growth up and gradueth. And the editor putteth in the paper a swell notice. He telleth of the wisdom of the young woman and of her exceeding comeliness. Like unto the roses of Sharon is she, her gown is played up to beat the band. And the editor receiveth a note of thanks from the girl graduate.

And the daughter goeth on a journey. The editor throweth himself on the story of the farewell party. It runneth a column solid. And the fair one remembereth him from afar with a picture post card.

Behold, she returneth, and the youth of the town fall down and worship her. She picketh one and lo, she picketh a real lemon. The editor calleth him one of the promising young men and getteth away with it. And they send unto the editor a bid to the wedding, and behold, the bids are fashioned in a far city.

Flowery and long is the wedding notice which the editor printeth.

At last the editor printeth two columns of obituary. And he forgetteth to read the proof of the heading and the darn thing cometh out "Gone to Her Last Roasting Place".

And all that are akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceeding great jumps. And they pull it out their ads and cancelth their subscriptions and they swing the hammer even unto the third and fourth generations.

Cold Reception At Lost Lake

Neither Snow Nor Precipices Daunt July Anglers In Climb To Mountain Trout Hidden High Above Kananaskis

By Don Douglas In Fish & Game

A FEW years ago a song was introduced called "It's June in January". However, if the song writer had ever visited "Lost Lake" in the Kananaskis Forest Reserve in June . . . or even early July, he would have been singing a slightly different version of the song . . . perhaps "June Bugs in the Snow", or "Glow Little Ice Worm".

Unfortunately nothing . . . not even snow in June . . . deters the ardent fisherman when he hears tales of a "hidden lake" where the trout grow big as Dolphins and you don't have to lie about the size of the "big one that got away" . . . or the big ones you caught, for that matter.

It was such a tale that lured Russ Roberts and myself into the mountains on two occasions, on a difficult and, at times, hazardous journey . . . climbing sheer precipices, navigating huge rock slides and crossing, on the second trip, a dangerously swollen stream. Our goal . . . that lost bit of virgin stream or lake, rarely visited by man, whose waters teemed with giant, hungry trout . . . Lost Lake, or Ribbon Lake as it is sometimes called, deep in the Kananaskis mountains.

As it turned out, this lovely little emerald-green lake, nestled in the high peaks which border the beautiful Kananaskis river, was not as "lost" or as "unknown to man" as our informers would have had us believe. On our first trip we found a trail of sorts . . . an old abandoned "hole road", which was well-marked in places by the hob-nail boots commonly worn by fishermen in this type of country.

Rus and I didn't have too much difficulty on our first trip. However, we just went in for the day, carried only our lunches and our fishing tackle, and fortunately, Ribbon Creek was fairly low.

Ribbon Creek is a turbulent stream dropping about one hundred feet at the lake and a rough two hundred feet in a picturesque fall at the head of the gorge. The stream follows the gorge until it reaches the Kananaskis River just below the Kananaskis Mines, which is where we ran out of road and had to abandon the car.

THE actual distance from the mines to Lost Lake is about eight miles . . . six miles up . . . and two miles straight up. The trail crosses Ribbon Creek about ten times before reaching the falls and, since all the bridges have long since washed out, it was necessary for us to wear waders or hip boots. The crossings are not too difficult in August and September, but are dangerous in June and July when the creek is swift and treacherous.

On our first excursion to Lost Lake, Rus and I enjoyed some very fine fishing. However, we decided at the time that it would be more enjoyable if we could stay longer and not so strenuous if a party of about four were to pack in.

As a result, we persuaded Bob

Lovell and Bruce Romaine to make the trip with us the following year. Each man would carry food, one blanket and a tarp and we intended to "camp out" for four days. Our hopeful plans were drastically altered when we reached Lost Lake, and our four-day camping trip never did materialize. Here's what happened . . .

We left Calgary on June 29 and 5:00 a.m. the next morning found us at the mines, all packed and ready to go. By 8:00 a.m. we had made a bare five miles, if that, and were so tired we called a halt for hot coffee and a brief rest. Ribbon Creek was very high and we encountered a great deal of difficulty in fording it with our heavy packs. We also had a tough time hauling ourselves, not to mention our packs, up the almost perpendicular sides of the precipice, where one mis-step would mean a fast . . . and probably fatal . . . trip to the huge jagged boulders below us.

We started on our way again and after another strenuous mile, reached the lower falls. Then things got really tough. The trail seemed to disappear into the clouds as we began a 45-degree climb which took us another full hour. Then we crossed a big rock slide and proceeded to make a slow and perilous trek across two wide stretches of snow which reached almost to the top of the mountain and which there was no getting around. Potholes had to be cut in the icy crust in some places while in others we sank up to our knees. It was rugged going and back-breaking work every foot of the way.

Finally we reached a high point where we could see the lake . . . the goal of all our efforts. A desolate picture greeted our anxious eyes. There was nothing but snow in every direction and the lake was covered with a glittering sheet of ice, which turned out to be two feet thick. The snow was five feet deep on the level but in spite of this we logged around to the far side of the lake where there seemed to be a small patch of open water and a possible spot for a camp site. Half way there Bob Lovell fell through the ice. A drizzle of rain and snow was falling by now and the temperature was dropping, so Bob was a pretty cold boy by the time we reached our destination, collected some very scarce dry branches to make a fire, and set about drying his clothes and thawing him out.

There wasn't a dry camp spot to be found, so, bushed as we were we decided to rest for an hour or two and then hit the trail back to the car. The prospect was a dreary one, but seemed better than freezing all night on the ice-bound shores of Lost Lake. However, we did save a little time on the return journey by sleigh-riding down one of the steep snowy slopes on our heels. In a couple of minutes we had reached the bottom of a mountain that it had taken us over two hours to ascend.

When we finally got home and our wives wanted to see all the "giant trout" we'd caught, we explained that we hadn't even bothered chopping a hole in the ice to look for fish because, July or not, we figured they'd still be in winter hibernation.

It's an appropriate calling card for the man who is better known to the CBC radio audience as the B. C. Gardener.

In the past nine years he has made innumerable friends with his valuable gardening hints delivered in a chatty, informal style on Sunday mornings at 10.

It isn't only adults who like his broadcasts. He says one of his keenest listeners is his three-year-old grandson, who can already differentiate between flowers although his pronunciations 'gani-ums' and 'napdragons' leaves something to be desired.

DECISION
(Helen McGillivray)

When the door of life is opened Just a very tiny crack,
There's a feelin' draws me forward And another draws me back.
It's another big decision That later may seem small.
Yet that door may lead to nothing But a lonely, empty hall.
It's a challenge to go onward: "Nothing ventured, nothing gained".

And my mind says "Take that challenge",
While my heart might have remained.

The Ox and the Frog

A LITTLE FROG was playing about at the edge of a pool when an Ox came down to the water to drink. In fear, the little frog swam home. "Why are you so frightened?" asked his mother. "An enormous creature with four legs came to our pool this morning," replied the little frog. "Enormous, was he? Was he as big as this?" asked the mother frog, puffing herself out to look as big as possible. "Oh! yes, much bigger," was the answer. The mother frog puffed herself out still more. "Was he as big as this?" said she. "Oh! yes, yes, mother, MUCH bigger," said the little frog. And yet again she puffed herself out. "As big as . . . ?" she began—but then she burst.

Kerr Wins One Day Spiel To Open Season

Jim Kerr skipped his rink to victory in the one day Spiel last Sunday to open the curling season for Coleman, defeating E. Spievak in the final game of the main event. Joe Malanchuk was the winner in the other event.

Ten rinks entered the mixed spiel featuring a number of good games. Kerr met J. D'Appolonia in the first round emerging to meet Spievak, winner over DeLuca. Mayard met defeat at the hands of the Malanchuk rink, Rinaldi defeating Roughhead in the same event. Malanchuk and Rinaldi met in the finals of the secondary, Malanchuk winning the contest.

Twenty four rinks make up the regular draw for Coleman Curling Club this season, with twelve rinks in each the A. and the B. section.

Ten rinks are entered in the Ladies Curling club this year, a slight increase over last season. A report will be made regularly showing the progress of both mens and ladies sections.

Hockey Highlights

We took in the first practice of the Grands and had plans for seeing the following sessions. Quite a large turnout featured the first go and indicates many changes in the lineup for this year.

Coach Bill Fraser had two net-minders working out, Adam Kryczka up from Juvenile, and Cpl. MacDonald, recently back from service in Germany. Cpl. MacDonald received injuries to the hand and had to leave the practice. Noticeable on the ice were Mike Hudz, Teddy Kryczka and Alfie Anderson of last years squad. Lawrence Gingras formerly with the Calgary Herald team, Banff Juniors and Canmore Juveniles and Intermediates was trying out, as were many of last years juveniles. Anderson played defence for Calgary Buffs until returning to the Pass a week or so ago.

Up from Junior B last year are George Jenkins, Andy Siska, of Coleman and Billy Lee, of Blairmore. Al Tomlins, of Frank, and a member of the Coleman Juveniles last season, was trying out.

Many of the last years squad were tied up on afternoon shift and are expected to be out before long.

The rink opened December 29 and has been well patronized by skaters and the various hockey teams. Organization of the hockey setup is now complete with the following serving as coaches: John Morris, Pee Wees; Ted Kryczka, Midget; Jimmie Evans, Juvenile; W. Fraser, Intermediate.

The first game of the ABC League was played at Cranbrook on Moxing Day, with Kimberley racking up a 7-5 win over Cranbrook.

Skiing Highlights

Antle's Hill has been well patronized by ski addicts over the holidays, the experienced using it to brush up on before taking the better hills, and the rank amateur figuring it a good place to make his falls and learn a few things.

Blairmore ski hill has been well patronized and is reported to be in good shape after the heavy snow fall. The hill has apparently taken a beating this year by vandals who cut the tow rope and shot out the lights.

Every year about this time Mount Coulthard becomes a topic of conversation, skiers claiming it to be the mecca of skiing. However we haven't heard of anyone visiting the spot as yet.

On January 17 the Crow's Nest Pass Ski Club will sponsor the Alberta Provincial Open Tournament, Slalom and Downhill. This will afford the local people the opportunity of seeing some of the best in skiing.

The Coleman Ski fraternity has been strengthened by two better than average enthusiasts.

Coleman Old-Time Hockey Stars To Play At Lethbridge

Coleman hockey players of yesteryear will be well represented in the Old Time's game at Lethbridge Jan. 16th. Among those from the Pass who have agreed to play are;

Bill Fraser, Dave Kemp, Geo. Jenkins, Bill Knight, Duke Kwasnie, and Tony Vejprava. More are expected to join the lineup.

FIVE SETS OF TWINS AT COLLEGIATE—The Swift Current Sun's camera wasn't suffering from double-exposure when it shuttered on this group of students at the Swift Current Collegiate one day recently. It was merely recording the fact on film that there are five sets of twins registered in that institution of learning, which may be a record. Three of the five sets are "identical". According to an interview given a reporter for the Collegiate Column the advantages accruing to twins are close companionship and the sharing of life's tribulations and sunshine. But there are disadvantages too—like when a teacher accidentally penalizes one twin for the misdemeanors of the other! To be on the safe side, the cautious teacher usually splits the detention. Left to right, twins are identified as follows: 1 and 4, The Boos, Grace and Gladys; 2 and 3, The Lewises, Judy and Janet; 5 and 7, The Chelevs, Joan and Jean; 6 and 8, The Usheys, Jennette and Leona. In the foreground are the Allens, Fred and Rod. Three sets: the Lewises, Chelevs and Boos, are in grade 10. The Ushey twins are in the new school; and the Allens are in grade 9.

MORDEN GIRL HONORED—Valerie Colert, Morden, Man., Girl Guide, is seen receiving congratulations from Mrs. Greer, Girl Guide commissioner from Winnipeg, on completion of Guide work that resulted in her receiving the Golden Cord, highest award in the Girl Guides association. Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Colert, of Morden, Valerie is one of the youngest girls to receive the cord, which can be seen over her shoulder and through her pocket in the picture above.

CANADIAN FURS have long been famous—and now through the Department of Trade and Commerce at the request of Joseph Debrony, Cuban patron of arts, a collection of furs will be shown at benefit shows in Havana, Cuba. In the photo above a model wears a ranch mink jacket, one of the fabulous pieces that make up the fur cargo for Cuba.

COLOR COMING—Only the go-ahead signal from Washington is needed to add color to television. Proof that color TV is just around the corner is this assembly line of color tubes at the Lancaster, Pa., RCA plant. These tubes are about to undergo an "exhausting" experience as they move toward the air-exhausting machine which creates a near-vacuum within the tubes to assure successful electronic operation.

TOWER OF SIENA—Tom Pottenburgh, of Rhinebeck, N.Y., rises to his full six feet, nine inches on the Siena College basketball court. The 20-year-old giant is a senior at the college in Albany, N.Y.

QUEEN WINS A TITLE—"Grecian Queen", who piled up earnings of $229,375 this season, has recently been named Champion Feminine Race Horse of 1953. Being led by her trainer, "Grecian Queen" is shown above on her arrival at Hialeah Race Track in Florida, where she may meet her male rivals in the $100,000 Widener classic in February.

BOWL ROLE—Barbara McCrick, 18, of Miami, Fla., will reign as queen of the Orange Bowl football classic in Miami come New Year's Day.

A MASCOT MEETS A QUEEN—Billy the Goat, mascot of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers stationed at Kingston, Jamaica, draws a bright smile from Queen Elizabeth during an encounter at the governor's residence, while the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh were visiting the British Island colony. The mascot was presented to the regiment by the late King George VI and wears a glistening brass nameplate bearing out his Royal patronage.

WESKIT HO!—This pure silk blazer and the black silk weskit are Countess Mair's contribution to the campaign to get more color and variety in men's clothes. Tiny blue squares and fine mother-of-pearl buttons brighten the weskit while stripes take care of the jacket.

YOUNG AT 65

Man's average life span has increased so that today's man of 65 is no rare specimen to be hung up in the closet with the worn-out shoes and the 1890 bathing suit. Retirement at 65 is indeed outmoded.—Banff (Alta.) Cragg and Canyon.

OUTSTANDING FOOTBALL PLAYER of the year, Billy Vessels of the Edmonton Eskimos, (right), receives the Schenley Award from A. U. Chipman, past president of the CRU. Vessels, the ex-Oklahoma star and winner of the Heisman Trophy as outstanding U.S. college player last year, was picked by sportswriters and broadcasters across the country. In addition to the trophy he received $1,000, a permanent plaque and a diamond tie-bar.

Mrs. Emma Rogers Celebrates 89 Years Of Helpful Life

Someone once said that it was not how long we lived that makes us old but rather what we let life do to us. If such be the case Mrs. Emma Rogers, of Coleman, has let life do only the better things.

Marking her 89th birthday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. Hoggan, Mrs. Rogers is alert and possessing all her faculties. An afternoon in her company is an enjoyable experience, one full of sparkle rather than the drab recitation of facts regarding hardships and privation. She recalls "the good old days" and retains an active interest in the present. Her life continues rather than dwelling in memories.

Throughout the Hoggan home is evidence of her industriousness and her wonderful skill with a needle. On one wall hangs the beautiful and intricate piece of needlework that won her a prize back in England, while in the drawers are luncheon and table clothes that were hand embroidered with hand crochet edges, completed at the age of 84 and 86. Both are fine in detail. Always close at hand are her wool and knitting needles, for she still knits socks.

Born in Cumberland, England, she married Jonathan Rogers 70 years ago coming to Coleman with him in 1913. Following a period while Mr. Rogers was employed at the McGillivray Mine, they moved to Arrow Lakes, B.C. in 1929, returning to Coleman in 1940. Mr. Rogers passed away nine years ago.

Honored by the Brownies last year as the eldest lady in Coleman, Mrs. Rogers is a member of St. Alban's Anglican Church and the Victoria Rebekah Lodge. She has four sons, William, at Arrow Lakes; Walter at Nelson; and Chris and Jack at Coleman; and one daughter, Mrs. W. Hoggan, Coleman. They are nine grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

It takes the advice of their four children to help Claire and John Drainie to get their Christmas tree ready for Santa Claus. What he has in store for them on Christmas morning remains to be seen, but there is no doubt about what Claire and John plan for radio listeners this coming year. They will continue to combine their dramatic talents on "Jake and the Kid", and John will be heard as well on "Stage 54" and "CBC Wednesday Night" among others. Claire also will be appearing on several CBC programs.
